Kurn Hattin claims abuse is no longer being perpetrated? The following transcript is from a Kurn Hattin boy's mother on August 31, 2024 at approximately 3:15 p.m in Westminster Vermont. She is scared, her 12-year-old boy is scared. The mother's name is [REDACTED] or [REDACTED], last name unclear, sounds like [REDACTED]: My son just started last year at Kurn Hattin. My son's 12 right now. One of my concerns is that a lot of children are left with adults for a long period of time and these kids are having a hard time and these kids are probably the most vulnerable children that you can probably get, and so that's a concern for me. My son, he didn't want to go back to Kurn Hattin, and his concern is that he complained about one of the other children. I was going to go talk to him. Like one of the other children was humping him, like dry humping another child. And I wanted to see what anybody did about it, because he was concerned about having to be in a room with that child. I was going to be calling Kurn Hattin to see what they did about that, because my son reported it. I was wondering what there is to do to protect him from those kinds of activities taking place. My son is under the impression that Kurn Hattin didn't do anything about it. So, I was going to call. [According to the mother, Kurn Hattin never informed the her, or the boy's father of their son's allegation of sexual abuse, nor it allegedly appears, did they report the alleged abuse to the Department for Children and Families as required by Federal and Vermont State Laws.] He was just with his dad, and just started back to school this week and before he went back he told me that this was something that bothered him about going back. He complained about this kid, not in a sexual way before, he complained about this kid already. And he said that's what he doesn't like about the place is that he doesn't like the kids, he said. What do they have in place to make sure that this doesn't happen? You know, the thing is, is that what's more disturbing is that they don't want to acknowledge it, because at least if you acknowledge it then you can fix the problem. If you don't even acknowledge there's a problem then you're not going to fix it. I had no idea anything had happened. When he started at the end of August there were only a little bit less than 20 kids at Kurn Hattin, but they told me that was because of COVID. You'd think they should at least tell parents coming in that there's something .... His father is in Virginia, they didn't notify either of us. They just get away with it.
